DEATH OF JOSIAH QUINCY .- This venerable man died ut Quincy, Massachnistis, on the lat inst., having passed beyond the age of nlueby two. The Boston Transcript in noticing the event, says it takes from us one who was a living tie between the past and the present, the youthful associate of the fathers of the republic, and the patriarchal friend and fellow-worker of their sons. Tho briefest mention of the events of his remarkable career will show what he was and how much he did-bow large was his ability and how hravely and diligently he used it. The son of Josiah Quincy, Jr., and Abigail Phillips, Le was boin in Boston, February 4, 1772. He was prepared for college at Phillips Academy, Andover, and gradoated at Harvard in 1790, and has been for a number of years the oldest living Alamans of that institution. He was elected to the Massachusetts Seoate in 1804, and served as a representative in Congiess from 1805 to 1813, where he was an arout opposent of the Administration, the war, and the embargo, taking his stand, in all the Impetuosity o' his youth, with the Federalists. On retiring fr m Congress he again served in the State Legislature. In 1822 ho was Judge of the Municipal Court, and made the famous decision in the Buckingham libel case. He resigned his place on the Beuch in 1823 to hecome Mayor of Boston, which office he filled until 1829, when he succeeded Dr. Kirkland as President of Harvard College. He retired from that office in 1845. Be-idea filling these promising places, Mr. cy was connected with various societies d took an active part in almost every enterise that aimed to benefit the material, edu cational, and moral interests of the Common wealth. He was fearless, nervous, and direct as a speaker, and bls speeches and orstions are a part of the political and patriotic literature of New England.

He osed his pon with force, closraess, and peint, and in adeition to many occasional remuhlets and letters, has left the municipal history of Boston, the history of Harvard College, and a Life of John Quincy Adams, as smorg the evidence of bls industry and regearch, and his faterest in every question of public importance. The Municipal History of Boston was published on the eightieth hirchday of the anthor, and shows that four score years had not abated his mental vigor.

The death of Mr. Quincy leaves the venerable Samuel Thatcher, of Bangor, Maine, the senior living alumnus of Harvard College, having graduat d in the class of 1793. The next anstarred names in the calelogus are those of Rev. Samnel Dana, of Marblebead, and Dr. James Jackson, of Boston, of the class

BUSBWHACKERS IN WELLINGTON. - We learn from the Lexington (Mo ) Union that last Friday, seventeen bashwhackers, noder the comand took possession of the town, placing pickots oo the different roads to prevent lagress and egress. The leader with three of his men then proceeded to arrest four of the citizens, Wm. Corse, D. K. Duck, Mr. Love, and another man, whom they said they intended to hold as hostages for the safety of a man named Irwin, who was sectenced to be shot on last Friday; stating that Irwin was sbot, these men should die. They finally succeeded in duing a gentleman whom they despatched with that message to Lient. Kessinger, commanding that post. Assoon as the messenger had started they released the citizens whom they bad streated, and after spending an hour or two in the town, withdrew. On the next morning they returned, but did no damage, as we are informed. We learn that they have not been in the town since. While there no one waspermitted to leave the town without a paes from Anderson. Mr. Duck says that while they held him and his compazions prisoners they oid not abuse or mistreat them.

A RESHWHACKER SANTENCEO. - David S. Martin, formerly a rebel soldier, and recently charged with hushwhackles and guerillaism. was tried by a mulitary court in Tennessee, and sentenced to be confined in the peritentiery at Nathville during the war. A few days ago the President Issued an order directlog that the prisoner be forwarded to Albany, New York, and confined in the State Penitentiary located at that point, nutll the close of the rebellion. Martin passed through the city yesterday under a strong guard, en route for the esst. He is n desperate character, and every precantion should be taken to make his confinement as accure as possible.

While rejoicing over the safety of Maj. Gen. Hocker, whose death was reported by telegraph, lustead of Brig. Gen. Harker, the Boston Transcript, with great propriety, says: "Cere should be taken to do ample justice to Gen. Harker, who has probably early fiiled a pidier's grave. The record of this officer is concrable one. He was hrave and modest. He had risen to his high rank by his merits: and, had he lived, he might have become one of the foremost chieftains of the srmy. WASSINGTON, Sunday, July 3. The anxiety felt in the army in regard to e late of Wilson's cavalry, was happily re-wed on Fidey night by their re entering ithin our lines. This was only accomplished y making a great defour round the rebelin autry force which had interposed itself be nrg and the Richmond and Danville Railroads, he retraced his staps, met the enemy's cavaly at Stony Creek, eightoen miles ba-low Petersburg, engaged this force, and after a severe action, in which he suffered heavy tossee, succeeded in turning the rebel right flink. This seemed to give him open communication with our army, but in the mean-while a force of the enemy's infantry had placed itself at Reams's Station to bar his progress. To extricate himself from this empassed down the Patersburg and Weldon Rail-road due south to Jarrett's, twenty-five miles helow Reams's; passed across the country, crossed the Blackwater, and, striking Usbin Point, reached the lines of our army, after lecribing the quadrant of an enormous cir-

Fay is that if be has been anti slavery in his feelings or opinions, till will in the last two years, he has a greater at of hiding his true sentin ents than any housest man has ever exhibited. We venture to pronounce—and hold ourself to the proof of i—that neither labam G. Horris, nor any other Tennessee rebel, has gone so far in proposing measures for the security, perpetuntion, and advance-ment of Aftican slavery as has the present candidate for the Vice Presidency of the United States on the Lincoln ticket. For one instalment of this proof: On the 13th day of December, 1859, Andrew Johnson was a member of the United States Senate. It was then known that Abraham Liuculu had been constitutionally elected. President of the United Scates, on the Chica-South Carolina and other Southern States had declared their determination to secede, and, if necessary, to defend themselves by force of arms against a sectional, anti-slavery administiation of the Federal Government. But it was not then known that the Conernment would be sustained in an attempt to enforce its authority by a resort to arms. It wa haped and believed that some compromise would be effected, by which the "slave power" might gain further security for the institu-

ing administration would need the aid of every friend, to enable it to vindicate its right against Southern resistance, what stand is taken by Secator Johnson? Did he cry aloud, ss now, that slavery was the cause of that resistance to rightful authority, and must here are be destroyed? Did be thunder for h his Phillipies (begging Cicero's pardon) agairst slave holding aristocrats, and pour nt puling Jeremiads over the inferiority of outhern society, attributable to the influence of the Villanous Institution?

FORBIGE VILITARY OPINION -O a of th best of French military periodic de-the Willitery Speciator-gives, in its May number, a this country during the year 1863, the conclufairs only reasons for discouragement two bundred guiusas." and censure. The third year of the war, says this article, was signalized by the success of months the North experienced only two imthat of the Chickamauga-from neither of which was the South able to draw any atsession of the line of the Tennessee, and tha advantage of compelling the Confederates to put themselves on the defensive hohlnd the Rapid Ann. The Federals also cetablished themselves on Morris Island, the fortifications of which they took hy assenlt. They, moreover, demolished Fort Sumpter, overran half of Arkansas, and interposed themselves at Brownsville between the Confederate States

After this general summary of the grand reanlts, the article proceeds to describe in detail the various operations of the year. At its commencement the Confederates were masters of all the region of the Alleghanies from the Potomac to Middle Tennessee. Their advanced posts were near Nashville, their cavalry interrupted the line of communication from Lonlaville, and made frequent incursions into Western Tennessee. They were masters Vicksburg and Port Hudson, and, between

The critical remarks of the Frenc's writer on the campaigns of the Army of the Poto mac, and on the conduct of the commaniers on both sides, are interesting:

The Confederate army has always taken and will continue to hold an expedent position, go that Richmond, the general coutre of opysticks, may be always safe; and if, as is pro the end Hooker and Burnside, the whole general system of war of the Confederates incire tbe tame reproach. It is not the less true that fortune twice delivered (be Fed ril army at General, and both times be allowed it to

The writer then gives a history of the invasion which terminated so disastrously for the Oonfederates at Gettysourg, and traces the northern armies. In conclusion, be says: Washington and Rl bmond "
